The ARTS HOTEL GALLERY at the Lancaster Arts Hotel is pleased to present CLAIRE GIBLIN's exhibit, "Wind Horse – Prayer for Peace". A third Friday ARTIST'S RECEPTION will be held on August 20, between 5 and 8:00 p.m. Robert Heilman will be featured in the Blanche Nevin Room with his exhibit, "local landscapes". Jazz musician, Jessica Smucker, will provide music in the John J Jeffries Restaurant area. The John J. Jeffries restaurant features locally grown sustainable cuisine. Happy hour begins at 4:00 pm.

INSPIRATION FOR HER latest exhibit arose when a friend returned after traveling to Tibet. Claire was "struck" by photographs showing thousands of flags seemingly suspended from the sky reaching from one mountain peak to the next. The flags, Tibetan Prayer Flags, placed in a careful order are intended "to show love and respect for the people of earth". Every flag displaying its own mantra, prayer, symbol and color catches the wind as it blows through the flags and carries their prayers to heaven.

"This is a beautiful concept. Flags and banners, colors and standards have primal meaning in every culture and spiritual belief. Sending our prayers to heaven on the wind, or in the smoke of incense, or by the flame of a candle, reveals our humanity and willingness to express our needs and our hopes."

The exhibition consists of monotypes on rice paper and acrylic works on paper and yupo (a recycled tree-free synthetic paper). Also included are acrylic big brush paintings on linen and synthetic silk, and the acrylic plates used in making the monotypes.

“The power of art substantiates its value in society! Response to a work of art, feelings of pure visual excitement social consciousness movement and ecstasy points to the purpose of art which is its immeasurable ability to influence one individual or entire civilizations! Unspoken communication is a key to enlightenment and peace and this is the thrust of my commitment as an artist!” Claire Giblin, 2010
